Iraq bans fuel for its residents

BAHRAIN, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Allied warplanes and the USS Missouri's mighty guns shattered morning peace from Baghdad to Kuwait's embattled shores Tuesday. In a mid-winter war, Iraq has banned sales of heating oil and fuel to its increasingly desperate people.

Marines gear to strike sea. Page 3

Baghdad said 428 civilians have been killed thus far in what the official radio condemned as "savage" bombing.

Up on the desert war front, the American contingent in Operation Desert Storm engaged in its first combat, driving 30 Iraqi intruders back into Kuwait with artillery fire, Iraqi officials reported.

Behind the scenes in Mideast capitals, meanwhile, in telephone calls and private meetings, diplomats and government leaders conferred on Monday's bid by Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani to initiate a Persian Gulf peace.

The Soviets and Turks signaled support for Iran's initiative. In Washington, however, President Bush said he had seen no Iranian peace plan and saw nothing to negotiate with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

"He's got to say, 'I'm going to get out of Kuwait,' now, fast," Bush said.

The U.S. chief executive said he was sending the Pentagon's top leadership — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell — to the war zone this week to assess how the U.S.-led offensive, now 20 days old, is progressing.

The U.S. command reported another 2,000-sortie day in the Desert Storm air war, and said American warplanes took special care again at the dug-in Republican Guard, backbone of the Iraqi defense of Kuwait.

Six "packages" of B-52 strategic bombers struck Guard positions, the command said.

It said U.S. warplanes also continued focusing on resupply lines to the Iraqi troops in Kuwait and southern Iraq, striking a 25-truck convoy in one instance late Monday.

British officers reported strikes on an ammunition storage site south of Baghdad, and a railway junction and rail bridge in southeast Iraq, among other targets.

Eastern visited by educators from Far East

By RYAN CUNNINGHAM
Administration editor

Eastern moved a little bit closer to the Far East Tuesday as the president of a Taiwanese university visited campus.

Once a year, the president of the National Kaohsiung Normal University, Shou-Shan Chang, visits the United States to "strengthen and enhance the sister school exchange program." This year, he chose to stop at Eastern.

Chang and the Kaohsiung delegation attended a reception in the Buzzard Building in an attempt to improve the relationship between the two universities.

The members of the delegation were Cecilia Sun, chair of the Kaohsiung English department; Ralph Chen, professor of English; Joseph Tsai, dean of general affairs; and Yvonne Fu, an assistant to the exchange program.

Along with Eastern, Kaohsiung has a cooperative agreement with seven other colleges and universities within the states.

The other schools are: Southern Georgia, North Carolina-Charlotte, North Dakota, Western Michigan, Northern Colorado, Western Florida and San Diego State.

"The agreement stipulates such things as what kind of support that will be provided students and faculty for housing and travel," said Shirley Moore, dean of academic development.

"He (Chang) likes to discuss things in person," said Chen. "Over the phone you don't get the immediate feedback."

"I think the biggest thing to learn and tolerate is another culture," Chang said. "That is the biggest gain of this program. It is a pity there have not been any students from EIU come to Taiwan."

Chang said although the exchange program is mainly directed toward the faculty, it includes three students from North Carolina-Charlotte and another one from Western Florida.

The exchange program began in the fall semester of 1974 when Paul Overton, who is now an Eastern professor of psychology and guidance, was the first Eastern faculty member to travel to Taiwan.

Then in 1975, former Eastern President Gilbert Fite and former Kaohsiung President Kuang-tsu Hsueh signed the agreement between the two universities. The Taiwanese university was then known as the Provincial Kaohsiung Teachers' College.

'Zora' drama depicts plight of black woman

By SUSAN THOMAS
Staff writer

Zora Neal Hurston's life changed at the age of nine when her mother died and her stepmother didn't want her in the house.

Her relatives mistreated her and she left home at age 14, only to be tried later for sodomizing a young boy. But, her story doesn't end there.

The one-woman play "Zora," by Laurence Holder, will be performed by actress Jacqueline Wade at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Rathskellar of the Martin Luther King Jr.

University Union.

"Her life wasn't a tragedy," Wade said. "She was a woman trying to make it in a man's world."

With no money and lots of talent, Hurston became known as one of the great women writers of the Harlem Renaissance, later inspiring other artists.

Essay contest deadline approaching

Friday at 4 p.m. is the deadline for The Daily Eastern News' Third Annual Essay contest in celebration of Black History Month. All Eastern students are eligible to participate in the contest and write on the theme "A Celebration of Heritage." Essays should be less than 500 words and depict the relevance of African heritage to modern black American life. Prizes will be awarded to first, second and third place winners and honorable mentions. Winners will be announced at the Miss Black EIU Pageant on Feb. 23, and their essays will be published the following week on the editorial page.

The 90-minute play will cover the trials of Hurston and her work as an anthropologist, folklorist, critic and writer.

"A lot of people didn't know who she was," Wade says. "With

The performance will be filled with music, dancing and humor as Wade brings to life, through Hurston, the characters and events that helped to shape the person she eventually became.
The performance will be followed by a question and answer session to enable audience members to better understand some of the symbolism seen in the play, according to art professor William Colvin, who schedgetting control was shifted away from Armstrong. He did say, "it was a good" decision.

Both Eastern and BOG officials have said that Stanczak's report will not be completed until Rives and Armstrong respond at the next BOG meeting to unanswered "concerns."
That meeting will be held at Chicago State University on Feb. 21. Rives' and Armstrong's responses are expected to come in a closed, executive session.

uled the play in commemoration of Black History Month.
"Some things in the play will be done symbolically because they can't fit everything into an hour-and-15-minute stage show," said Colvin.
The questions will be answered from Wade's perspective of Hurston's life.
Wade said she decided to perform Zora because she admired the real-life character's strength.
"I liked her entrepreneurship ... She was a producer," Wade explained. "She got her work on Broadway."

Jobs Fair gives students hiring hopes

By BRUCE UNDERWOOD
Staff writer

Despite — or perhaps because of the shaky economic forecast, hundreds of students flooded the Martin Luther King Jr. University Community Union Tuesday for the 1991 Recruitment Day Job Fair.

More than 115 prospective employers registered and interviewed "steady streams" of at least 750 students throughout the day in the Union ballrooms where they were stationed, said Shirley Stewart, the director of Career Planning and Placement.

From the FBI and Upjohn Pharmaceuticals to Six Flags Great America, company representatives offered an opportunity "for students to network with prospective employers to discuss the various career opportunities that exist within each organization," Stewart said.

With Six Flags, for instance, a company known for its nationwide amusement parks, openings exist in all seasonal staff positions, said Dan Lieberman, the company security supervisor.

"We prefer to hire college students because of the public relations impact," he said. "College students come off better than 16-year-olds."

Steve Senteney, a special agent with the FBI, said that governmental agency was also looking to hire.

But just as the interviewers were pleased with the student turnout, some of the students also were pleased with the companies.

Senate wants to see proposal

By RYAN CUNNINGHAM
Administration editor

The Faculty Senate Tuesday expressed its dissatisfaction over the proposed implementation of a new general education core curriculum.

The senate said that according to its constitution, the program proposal must first go through the senate before being approved. The constitution stipulates that the senate should examine any major changes in the curriculum and then has 90 days to respond.

"They (the administrators) can't bypass us," Carpenter said. The (senate) constitution mandates that we look at it."

The proposal, which is now with Robert Kindrick, vice president for academic affairs, was submitted to Kindrick on Jan. 29 by the Council on Academic Affairs.

If approved, the new program will give students fewer courses to choose from in lieu of the cafeteria-style of choice they had faced. However, as it raises the required hours from 39 to 46, it also may take a longer period of time to complete.

"I think they (the administration) need to know we want to examine the ramifications of the new core curriculum," senate member Bob Jorstad said. "That's what we were voted in to do."

"Our responsibility is to the total faculty and we want to make sure that happens," geography/geology Professor Gary Wallace said.

Jorstad pointed out that his department (geography/geology) is being forced to offer six more courses than it has the manpower to accommodate. He also said fellow senate member Gary Wallace is being asked to teach a course he is not accustomed to.

"It's a world geography course," Wallace said. "I'm a geologist."

AB approves 13 of 14 additional allocations

By ANN GILL
Staff writer

Eastern's Apportionment Board Tuesday approved 13 of the 14 requests for additional allocations and line-item transfers.

Two of the major requests for additional allocations made to the AB by Student Senate and University Board passed with the funds coming from the organizations' reserve accounts.

AB approved the Student Senate request of $2,877.60 for the purchase of a copy machine to be used by the senate, the AB, the University Board and Student Activity Center secretary.

On behalf of the senate, Board of Governors representative Brett Gerber presented the proposal to the AB, stating that the copy machine would save a total of $1,382.40 per year after the initial purchase cost of the copier.

Senate member Steve Macaluso said with the purchase of a copy machine the time factor in producing copies would be greatly depreciated from the current system being used.

Film provides insight on foreign policy

George Bush is fond of saying that the Persian Gulf War "won't be another Vietnam" — evidence that our president does not want the populace to equate what's happening now with that divisive conflict.

But the president's pacification process needs to be explored. And that's where "Hearts and Minds," a documentary about the Vietnam War comes in.

"Hearts and Minds," which will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lumpkin Hall, Room 27, won the Academy Award for best documentary in 1974, though the statements it makes are still pertinent, especially considering the parallels being drawn between the Persian Gulf and Vietnam.

There is no charge to see "Hearts and Minds," sponsored by the Eastern Illinois Coalition for Peace

Marine 'Gators' Ready Seaborne Strike Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Marine task force is heading into the Persian Gulf after wrapping up a "dress rehearsal" amphibious assault on the southern shore of the Saudi Arabian peninsula, Pentagon sources say.

Eight thousand Marines from the seaborne task force pounced on the coast of Oman near the island of Masira, one of the sources said, "using every kind of aerial assault, amphibious vehicle, helicopter and landing craft they had." The sources called the event a "major exercise" that took place over a two-week period. It was the latest of four Marine Corps exercises held since the Marines arrived in Saudi Arabia in August.

The exercises are being staged, the sources said, to keep the amphibious warriors sharp in case President Bush decides to mount a land campaign against the forces of Saddam Hussein dug into Kuwait or Iraq.

Bush said Tuesday he would make his decision on a ground assault based on recommendations from his top military advisers, but said he was skeptical that air attacks alone would be enough to drive the Iraqis out of Kuwait.

The Marine task force — composed of some 17,000 Marines — is back on the water and "slowly working its way north," said one Marine Corps officer. "We intend to keep Saddam awake, and let him worry about where we might land." There will be more exercises, the sources said, allowing the Marines and their flotilla of Navy support ships to practice the timing and organization required for the complex series of events that make up a successful amphibious landing.

In the event such a move is in the offing, the Navy's two battleships — the USS Missouri and the USS Wisconsin — are expected to turn their huge 16-inch guns on the shoreline in order to batter Iraqi defenses prior to a land assault.

On Sunday, the Missouri destroyed an Iraqi command and control center in Kuwait by lobbing seven rounds of its 2,000-pound shells ashore — the first time the World War II-era warship used its guns in combat since the Korean War.

"What the Missouri is doing, that's just target practice, getting ready for us," said the Marine officer.

The Wisconsin is expected to begin unleashing its guns on Iraqi positions by the end of the week, other sources said.

The Marines have massed around 90,000 of their number in the Gulf region — which amounts to about 75 percent of the Corps.

"With that many in the region, it's clear the Pentagon brass wants a classic Marine beach assault," said a senior Pentagon military officer.

The floating force of Marines operates under the "umbrella" of a Navy carrier battle group, which is able to put fighters and other protective aircraft aloft to protect against any attack from the sea or sky.

Their task is to transfer a major fighting force from the sea to the land, a form of warfare honed to a specialized art by the Navy and Marine Corps.

Experts in amphibious warfare note that such a large force is also capable of using large numbers of ships and Marines to stage feints, or decoy attacks, to force Iraqi shore defenders to thin out their lines.

For example, three separate attacks could be mounted, but two arms of the movement could change direction and suddenly forge together in one area in order to take advantage of an enemy weakness or break in the coastal defenses, the experts said.

The task force also could mount clandestine operations, participate in mine hunting, or even stage smaller, short-term shore raids, the experts said.

The Marines are aboard a wide array of specialized ships, affectionately dubbed "Gators," that are designed to disgorge Marine tanks, hovercraft, troops, helicopters, howitzers, armored vehicles and a vast array of armament.

REVIEW

in the Middle East and Students in Solidarity with the People of Central America.

The documentary is a good primer for understanding the Vietnam War — in human terms by exploring the roots of U.S. foreign policy, policy that affects us to the present day.

"Hearts and Minds" helps in the exploration of the collective American psyche by probing the minds of the power players (people like Lyndon Johnson and William Westmoreland) and the soldiers who had to come home, home to a nation not ready to reconcile the problems of Vietnam.

Johnson is shown explaining why the United States must be in Vietnam: For the "hearts and minds" of the Vietnamese who wanted deliverance from the ills of communism.

Johnson was playing to the populace, attracting its hearts and minds, by trying to make the military battle a moral one.

Then the machine got too big.

Caught up in the mechanism of a myth that would not slow down, the United States continued in Vietnam, orchestrating events that would prove why we must remain committed to an ill-fated policy.

Johnson continued to lie to the country, to try to make Americans believe that what we were fighting for was the very essence of a democratic society, when he knew that nothing could be further from the truth.

What most students — people who were literally babies when the Vietnam War was happening — need to do is go see the movie. That way the next time Bush makes his claim, they'll have a reference for his rhetoric.

Bush's budget is a clear sign of what's ahead

When President Bush sent Congress his $1.45 trillion budget Monday, he also sent a message that's loud and clear, even for the normally hard of hearing.

The president is following in the footsteps of his predecessor, Ronald Reagan, by ignoring the need to cut money from the proposed budget, implicitly leading to larger deficits in coming years.

Bush's budget projects a record deficit at a time of recession while paying for the Persian Gulf war only through March.

All of that leads up to hard times for the average American.

Editorial

What with the war and the continuing economic downturn, Bush needs to be moving as decisively on domestic policy as he has on other fronts.

Bush will send Congress a supplemental request to cover the costs of the war in coming weeks. That means even more money will have to come out of the treasury, which doesn't have the funds. And that means an even larger deficit.

Additionally, Bush predicts only a short war in his budgeting, though his rhetoric does not agree with that prediction. "We will stay until Kuwait has been liberated."

The president also has failed to propose any new programs to counter the recession or to reduce our dependence on foreign oil, two items that should have been key parts of a new presidential policy.

But Bush doesn't like to even acknowledge these problems or the recession publicly: "The longest period of economic expansion in history has been temporarily interrupted."

Just as the president has a hard time saying war, he also has a hard time saying recession, though we've all been living this recession since it began last August or September.

But the two words Bush has a hard time saying are the two things he needs to be considering most earnestly, because both are of paramount importance to the future of this nation.

If the president wanted to make a strong statement, one that says he is concerned about domestic policy and not just making war, he should have done it when he presented his budget to Congress.

A journey through the lost and found

Somewhere on this campus there are at least half a dozen people locked out of their apartments, walking around blind, or without any teeth.

And The Daily Eastern News can make their lives a little easier.

Like several of these people, I am very good at losing things. In fact, I've recently lost my Civil Liberties textbook and sure would appreciate getting it back. Like many other books supplied by Eastern's Textbook Rental Service, my Civil Liberties textbook is beat to crap and I've got it held together with masking tape. And, like most Eastern students, I'm not smart enough to put my name inside the front cover. So if you find it, give me a holler.

Anyway, after less than five minutes in the newspaper's business office, I've learned there are lots of students who are much better at losing things than I am.

In early January, someone lost a small, Panasonic tape recorder at the Instructional Material Center (IMC lab) in the Buzzard Building. I've tried it out and it works pretty well - except it's going to need batteries pretty soon. In fact, if it is not claimed pretty soon, I think I'll keep it.

The secretary in our business office, where lots of lost and found stuff is turned in, tells me that we hang onto that stuff indefinitely - after a while though they'll probably either pitch it or give some of the stuff to Goodwill.

But how can you give Goodwill someone's dental bridge or retainer?

In December, someone's retainer must have stumbled out of his mouth. Then, somebody must have picked it up and turned it into us. We've already run an ad in the lost and found section, but it's still here in the box and it's starting to look really scummy - lots of white stuff building up around the top. Even if it was mine, I wouldn't put it in back in my mouth. I had a retainer before and I know they cost a couple of hundred bucks. So, somebody has a pretty scummy-looking hundred of bucks sitting at the bottom of one of three jam-packed lost and found drawers at The Daily Eastern News.

If you want to give your girlfriend a cheap Valentine's Day gift, there's an empty key chain here in the shape of a heart. It has another little red heart in it that says "are loved." Now granted, there's a big crack in the middle of it, but it's the thought that counts.

Are Kendra Jones and Maribeth Schwab still on campus? We've got your student IDs.

Are Lisa Bellafiore, Lewis Pope and Brian Nicholson still on campus? We've got your social security cards. And if you don't pick them up soon, we're going to sign you up for Intersession.

Anytime I hear about little black books, I think they are places where guys discreetly keep all the phone numbers of their old girlfriends. But there's one person who has a little green book: It has the names and numbers of our favorite fertilizer companies listed in it. To each his own.

Is Brian Nicholson still here? We just found your membership pass to Stevenson Tower at Northern Illinois University. Hell, you don't even go here.

And if Robert Turner breaks his leg while walking to class - he's out of luck. We've got his medical emergency card.

Oh, here's something I've always wanted - a card that gets me into the Glenview Public Library.

Hey Nicholson, we've got your golf pass to the George Williams College Golf Club too. But it looks like you're out of luck. It expired in 1985.

If you're having trouble with your eyes, stop by our business office in the Buzzard Building - we've got about five pairs of glasses here and a couple of them are pretty fashionable. They might not be your prescription, but we'll have you ought of here in less than 10 minutes. What eyeglasses factory can do that?

My favorite item though, is someone's dental bridge. It's been lost since 1988 and by looking at it, you'd know that this person had a hell of a dental problem. There are about four teeth plated on the bridge and now they're starting to turn yellow. It's been really good for growing out reporters in the newsroom. But it's become kind of sentimental.

In fact, I don't know if we'd want to give it back.

Your Turn

Bigot Brizzolara better know he's part of the problem

Dear editor:

I cannot believe that Bret Brizzolara had the nerve to sign his name to the letter that appeared on these pages ("Your turn," Jan. 30). He writes that women should be "thankful for Kotex" as if the menstrual cycle itself is the crux of inequality issues between men and women. This kind of thinking is sexist, ignorant and dangerous. Further, it is even more reprehensible in the context of the war in the Gulf.

We should be grateful for our enlisted people (men and women) looking out for our interests in the war. Instead, Mr. Brizzolara insists on calling unnecessary attention to irrelevant differences at a time when we ought to be united as a country of both genders. Is it any more difficult for a woman to kill a human being than it is for a man? Haven't the women serving in the Gulf received the same training as the men there? They deserve equal respect rather than ignorant doubts from someone who bases his opinions on a woman's "certain thing once a month." This precise attitude is one of the reasons why women are not drafted.

It is a misconception that the differences (and there are some - thank goodness!) between men and women are a matter of personal hygiene and hormones as far as the draft is concerned. Gender equality does not exist (yet) in a variety of areas. Social change takes time. Until people realize that vocational and intellectual capabilities are rarely gender related, but are rather largely a matter of upbringing and socialization, such progress is hindered. Blatant bigotry, such as that expressed by Mr. Brizzolara, limits the potentials of both men and women in becoming all we can be as human beings. This includes being responsible and sensitive in our use of language. Mr. Brizzolara is inconsistent, asking if "women are capable of fighting like men" (assuming fighting like a man whatever that is - is "good") and that women have "earned their (equal) rights," and then questioning women's qualifications for service based on periods while also asking that's the reason they're not drafted! I'm not even going to touch the line about "cooking Iraqi food."

I'm glad that the men in the military don't observe women as "bitch axes" or reduce their definition to bodily functions. Fortunately, I don't think Bret Brizzolara speaks for the majority of men. Maybe if he took his mind a little, he'd recognize he's part of the problem he complains of.

Senate set to plan for elections

by SUZANNE OLIVER
Student government editor

The Student Senate will begin planning for this semester's elections at its regular Wednesday night meeting.

Spring elections are set for April 17 for the four executive positions and for half of the student senate member seats.

Open executive seats include president, vice president, financial vice president and Board of Governors representative. District openings for the senate member seats have not been determined.

The meeting is set for 7 p.m. in the Arcola-Tuscola Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The executive positions of senate speaker and chief of staff are appointed within the Student Senate, and will be voted during the last regular meeting of the semester.

Student Speaker Kristy Koch said anyone interested in running can pick up petitions March 18 in the Student Senate Office, located on the second floor of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. The petitions are due April 3.

All petitions for executive positions must have 100 signatures, whereas district members need 25 signatures.

"Any student can run because we represent everyone," Koch said.

Senate executive positions currently receive a salary for their duties, she said. The election committee will hold a candidate forum before the election for both senate members and executive seats.

The student senate also hopes to find for new ways to support the troops serving in the Persian Gulf War.

Last semester, the senate distributed yellow ribbons symbolizing the troops in the Gulf and gave students a chance to send packages and letters through student government funding.

"We'll have to see how our budget is for this year," Koch said.

We're looking for seniors who like working with all kinds of hardware.

Careers in data processing, accounting, actuarial, and auditing at State Farm.

At State Farm, we understand the concept of "work." Believe it or not, we also understand the concept of "play."

That's because we don't think you can be really outstanding at the first without having an appreciation for the second. Which is exactly why a career at State Farm in Bloomington could be the ideal place for you.

You'll work for one of the country's most respected companies on the most advanced computer equipment in the industry. You'll be challenged and stimulated. You'll be rewarded with excellent pay and benefits. You'll make your classmates very envious.

What's more, you'll also have time to appreciate the finer things in life. That's because Bloomington isn't just a great place to start a career, it's a great place to live, to enjoy, to start a family (if, indeed, you're ready to start thinking about that). In addition to the community's pleasant neighborhoods, inviting parks, and other recreational facilities, you'll find two universities that offer a host of cultural and social activities to take advantage of.

If you're a senior with a math, accounting, data processing, or computer science background, come talk to us at your college placement office. We're looking for people who are motivated and outgoing. People who enjoy challenges on the job — and away from it. After all, you're not just looking for a great job. You're looking for a great way of life.

Browns tab Belichick as new coach

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns made Bill Belichick the NFL's youngest coach on Tuesday, hiring the New York Giants defensive coordinator to resurrect the Browns from the rubble of last season.

The 38-year-old Belichick was given a five-year contract to replace Bud Carson, who was fired Nov. 5 after the Browns lost seven of their first nine games. Last year Art Shell, 44, of the Raiders was the youngest coach in the league.

"It gives me a great deal of pride and pleasure to be a part of this organization," Belichick said. "I'm tremendously proud to be here. The interest here is tremendous, as it is with the team I was with, the New York Giants." Former offensive coordinator Jim Shofner finished the season as interim coach but took his name out of the running because he was unable to halt the team's slide.

Cleveland's 3-13 mark was the worst in the franchise's 41-year NFL history, a shocking turnaround from five straight trips to the playoffs. Injuries and retirements depleted the offensive line while contract problems wrecked morale on the defense.

Belichick's prospects of becoming a head coach were enhanced by the Giants' defensive performance last season, including their 20-19 Super Bowl win over the Buffalo Bills on Jan. 27. He also was a candidate for the Tampa Bay vacancy, which went to former Bucs assistant Richard Williamson on Monday.

Bird could come back Wednesday

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Larry Bird's return is imminent. The Boston Celtics aren't sure that will return them to excellence.

After a month of mediocrity while Bird recuperated from a serious back problem, the Celtics could have him in the lineup for Wednesday night's game against Charlotte.

He practiced at full speed again Tuesday and hasn't had any major setbacks since he resumed scrimmaging seven days earlier.

Bird wanted to see how he felt Wednesday morning before deciding whether to play, coach Chris Ford said.

"We went through a 24-minute scrimmage (Tuesday) and he played well," Ford said. "He looked like he was moving pretty freely out there. ... If he were ready to play, he would start." Ford was encouraged that Bird showed no ill effects Tuesday from a strenuous workout on Monday. But he said he had no gut feeling about whether Bird would play against the Hornets.

In their last 14 games with Bird, the Celtics were 12-2. In their 14 games without him, they are 7-7.

After his last game, a 127-110 victory over Dallas on Jan. 6, they were 26-5, the NBA's second best record. Now they are 33-12, the league's third best mark.

"We've still got to realize what got us to the point we were at before Larry went down is doing it as a team," center Robert Parish said. "That's what we got away from, the little things — the defense, the rebounding, the loose balls."

Ditka signs 3-year deal

LAKE FOREST (AP) — Mike Ditka has agreed to a new three-year contract to coach the Chicago Bears, team President Daniel McCaskey announced today.

Terms were not revealed, but the deal was believed to grant $1 million a year to Ditka, who has led the Bears to six divisional championships in the last seven years, including the winning of Super Bowl XX in 1986.

"We worked it out in a matter of minutes," said McCaskey. "We don't believe in agents. We worked it out man-to-man and face-to-face." The 51-year-old coach was absent for the announcement. He was on his way to Palm Springs, Calif., for a spring vacation.

"It should come as no surprise," said McCaskey of the contract extension. "He has done an excellent job coaching the Bears. He helps us take the field and run football the way the Chicago Bears should. We are one of the teams in the NFL that have a distinctive personality. We play tough, hard-nosed football on offense, and a lot of it stems from Mike Ditka." Ditka, who has coached the Bears since 1982, was named coach of the year in 1984 when he suffered a mild heart attack and the team had a 14-4 record.

In 1989, the Bears slumped to 7-9 but they came back this past season to win the division and defeated New Orleans in the first round of the playoffs before losing to the New York Giants 31-3 in the second round.

Cats and dogs Panther wrestlers head to Northern

By KEN RYAN
Staff writer

Eastern's wrestling team will travel to DeKalb Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. dual meet with the Huskies of Northern Illinois. The Panthers will be trying to end a drought that has seen them drop five consecutive meets.

After starting out the season with a 3-1 record, Eastern has been stung by a number of injuries to key wrestlers and a some tough luck. Junior Bob Johnson, who had an impressive sophomore season, Gino Fioravanti and Dave Marlow (23-16) have all missed some action this year.

When the team finally had its full lineup back it came up to the tough part of its schedule. They've faced such teams as Illinois State, Miami of Ohio, who was undefeated at the time, and Northern Iowa, who was ranked eighth in the nation.

Now with a relatively healthy lineup, Eastern hopes to pick up a much needed victory over the Huskies.

"We are well overdue for a victory," Eastern head coach Ralph McCausland said. "We have to start getting some momentum."

Fioravanti, who is still out of the lineup, opens up a whole for the Panther squad.

"We are going to have to forfeit at 158 pounds, so it is important for us to start strong," McCausland said. "We especially have to do well at the 118 through 142 pound division."

The return of Johnson, who missed one meet with a fractured finger, will help make up for the loss at 158 pounds.

"Johnson's got his hand wrapped up but he should be ready to go," McCausland said.

Northern Illinois enters the meet with a 7-10 record and are looking to rebound from a tough 28-23 loss suffered at the hands of Central Missouri State. The Huskies are led by heavyweight Mark Kuehl, who owns a 15-6-1 record, T.C. Dantzler (11-3) at 158 pounds and Jim Kossakowski (13-7) at 167 pounds.

The Panthers will be looking to counter the Huskie attack with strong performances out of junior, Ray Serbick, who has the best record on the Eastern team at (27-11-1), freshman John Wentz at 118 pounds, senior Mike Wheatley (12-10) at 126 and sophomore Tom Carroll, who comes into the meet with an 11-7 record.

Eastern will be looking to improve on its 3-6 record against the Huskies before coming home to Lantz Gym for its final home meet of the season against Tennessee-Chattanooga.

All-purpose Rowe leads Panthers

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

Eastern's basketball team, like many others, has several different players that have to do certain things in order for the squad to be successful. Junior guard Steve Rowe is one such player.

Rowe, a 6-1, 180-pound off guard, can do many things on the court. He leads the Panthers (10-8 and 5-3 in the Mid-Continent) in both assists and steals. His 31 thefts rank him sixth in the league and his 62 assists are the eighth highest mark in conference play.

The Chicago South Shore product is third on the team in scoring with a 13.1 average in a lineup that boasts four players averaging in double digits. He also corrals 4.8 rebounds a game, third on the Panthers.

Against Western Illinois earlier this season, Rowe hit for a career-high 27 points in Eastern's first conference victory. He has connected for 20 or more points on three other occasions this year, including 24 against Illinois-Chicago and 22 versus Chicago State, both Panther victories, and both in front of Rowe's hometown crowd.

But scoring is only one of the many facets of Rowe's game, Eastern head coach Rick Samuels said.

"Steve's a hustler," Samuels said. "And his scrappy play is really a factor in every game. Whether he is scoring or shooting the ball well or not, his scrappy style of play becomes a factor."

"He gets a steal, he knocks the ball loose, takes a charge, does those kinds of things which can inspire a team."

Rowe said that although he is

leading the team in assists and steals, he wants to improve even more.

"I think things are going as well as expected," Rowe said. "I just want to boost those (averages) up if I can. But when other guys are down, I'd like to go out and pick them up (offensively) — just picking up the slack wherever it's at."

Samuels said that Rowe has been battling some tendinitis in his knee this season and it played a part in Rowe's 3-14 shooting against Northern Illinois, a game that the Panthers lost Thursday in DeKalb.

"He's had some trouble," Samuels said. "It really was effecting him at Northern Illinois. It's just something that popped up this year. But he had a great night last night (against Chicago State)."

"He was 9-12 (from the field) and made some key baskets and a couple of key steals and the kind of hustle play that we have become accustomed to."

Rowe said that the knee injury is on the mend.

"I've just been relaxing," Rowe said. "It's getting better now."

Samuels said that Rowe is a team player and knows what it takes for the team to be successful.

"I think he has a pretty good perception of things," the 11th-year Eastern coach said. "I think he understands that he has off nights, and there's other people that can come in and contribute. He's not selfish at all in terms of feeling like he has to be the one. He's very much in-tuned right now to team success."

Rowe had shot only seven three-pointers coming into this season, but has hit on 16-38 (42 percent) through 18 games this season. Samuels said that Rowe has become more of a legitimate threat from behind the arc this season.

"He's got much better range," Samuels said. "He's a more dangerous shooter because he can shoot it from three. I think Steve is capable of shooting in the high 40's as a season percentage."

Rowe said that before this season, he made a concerted effort to improve on his outside shooting.

"I really worked on that over the summer," Rowe said. "To add more to my game and become more of a threat to make the other teams play defense on me out there."

Rowe, who is usually the first man to dive after a loose ball on the floor, said that it is just how he knows to play the game.

"I really don't think about it," he said. "I guess it's just instinct. I just try to be the motivational leader out there. So if the other guys see me doing it, they won't think twice about doing it."

Cagers need fans for weekend games

I would have rather had the Panthers lose at Chicago State Monday night if I were assured that at least 4,000 fans would be in attendance at each of this weekend's home games against Wisconsin-Green Bay (Saturday) and Northern Illinois (Monday). The two visiting clubs are the only ones ahead of Eastern in the Mid-Continent Conference standings. Students have no excuses not to show — we don't have school on Sundays, and Tuesday is Lincoln's birthday.

For anyone that laughed earlier in the season when Eastern coach Rick Samuels said that Nebraska was a Top 25 team after the Cornhuskers beat the Panthers by 30 points in Lantz Gym, have you checked out the polls lately? They're ranked this week and were as high as 11th the week before.

Hey Cub fans, countdown starts for Opening Day at Wrigley Field. It's about two months away. Hey Cardinal fans, countdown starts for the next time St. Louis contends for an NL East title. It's at least a year away.

Since our regular hockey columnist, Rudy Nowak, graduated in December, we at the sports desk will attempt to take over for him. In the opinion of the sports desk editors that the Hawks and the Blues are two of the best teams in the NHL, although we disagree on who will win the Norris Division. Either way, bet on the Hawks for the Stanley Cup crown.

I hope I'm not the only one who was happy that Scottie Pippen wasn't named to the NBA All-Star squad. Any player of his caliber who compares himself to Dominique Wilkins and Larry Bird has something missing upstairs.

This just over the wire ... Mike Ditka signed a three-year contract Tuesday to stay on as the Bears' head coach. That's kind of a double-edged sword for Chicago fans. He's a great coach, but this means a minimum of three more years of rotten TV commercials and more Mike cologne.

College hoop fans have to be looking forward to Sunday's UNLV-Arkansas matchup that features the top two teams in the nation. The unanimous decision from the desk this time is the Razorbacks. The son? Barnhill Arena.

Good luck to Eastern's Tim Lance, who is in Indianapolis the next few days showing off his skills for NFL coaches and scouts at the combine.

And finally, this week's trivia question: What do the division winners of the NFC Central and the future winners of the NBA Central, the NHL Norris and the NL East have in common?

Answer: They all come from Chicago. Need I say more?
